

Your Criminology Journey

Further & Higher Education

The knowledge and skills that students acquire in KS5 Criminology form a secure foundation for degree-level study, with the course designed to support progression to higher education. Skills developed include critical thinking, independent learning, and the ability to analyse and evaluate theories. Criminology prepares students particularly well for degrees in Sociology, Psychology, Politics, Law, Criminology and Forensic Science, as well as vocational degree subjects like Teaching and Social Work. The course also allows students to easily progress into non-higher education pathways, including apprenticeships and training schemes.

Careers

Criminological knowledge can be used across multiple sectors, from politics to social welfare. Career options could include working within the civil service, community, or policing, as a police officer, crime scene investigator or detective. Social work would be another option, plus roles within the judicial system, including prison officer and probation officer.
